

This is the first page of our test document.

It contains sample text for testing the text extraction workflow.

The redpanda-connector will process chunks from this document.

Integration tests will verify that messages are properly routed.

This page contains enough text to be split into multiple chunks.

This is the second page of our test document.

It contains additional sample text for testing purposes.

The integration tests will verify end-to-end processing.

Redis state management will be tested with conversation events.

Summarization triggers will be verified when thresholds are exceeded.